FIFTH AVENUE

The Shop Window of the World

IN all Europe there is no street, not even Piccadilly or the Rue de la Paix, which can match The Avenue for the richness and splendor of the wares which are spread before the crowds that pass up and down its broad promenades. Antiques, dresses and rich fur; priceless paintings and rare objects from the other side of the world are shown to the passer-by in a constantly changing spectacle of wealth and luxury.

There is a subtle art in the way these objects are shown to the public, an art which few visitors to New York suspect. In the years which the merchants, whose stores face upon the Avenue, have spent in working for the best display of the articles which they present for sale, the craft of window dressing has been created. It is essentially a Fifth Avenue refinement. For the men whose business it is to display the finest wares of the house which they represent, with a large money appropriation for the window dressing alone, have evolved a scheme of artistic creation in display which is seen nowhere else.

In some of the best stores on the Avenue, through years of experiment, it has been found that the single impression which the fewest possible number of objects produce, placed to the very best advantage in the window, is of more value than a mass of small objects. This is at times with pleasing effect carried to the extreme, namely, the placing of a single object in a window at a time.

Weeks are often spent in planning for the arrangement of a single window display. The color harmony is studied, the changes in the values of the colors in the window under electric lighting at night, even the effect of the headlights of passing motors after sunset, is added into the valuation of all the factors which go to produce the finest possible display in the windows of the Avenue.

Each window is in itself the background for some part of the life of the day; the clothes which the women wear, the jewels all women envy, the furnishings of our homes. Each display is the setting of a stage, without the actors. The wealth and luxury of the age are here poured out for all to see, with all the prodigality of the richest city of the New World.

The crowds passing the huge plate glass windows of the stores little realize the skill of the army of window dressers, silent servants of the great public which comes from the remotest parts of the world to see and to buy what can be found nowhere else. Often at night, when the great stores are dark, lights behind a window curtain show that the scenes are being set for one of the greatest shows of American life, the merchandise of the richest country of the world.

Mail the coupon for investment facts

HAVE you ever wondered how the big, well-informed investors, such as the insurance companies, get the largest return that can safely be obtained on their money? Here are the facts:

The great life insurance companies have invested more money in the South (the region stretching from Virginia to Texas, where we finance building construction) than in any other section of the United States. The reasons for this are clearly stated above—safety and the best obtainable yield. The records show that the hundreds of millions of Southern mortgages and municipal bonds owned by insurance companies pay a higher average return than such securities in the North and East.

YOU, an individual investor, can follow the same plan as the big insurance companies. Regardless of whether you have $100 or many thousands of dollars to invest, you can safely get the prevailing Southern interest rate of 7% through Miller First Mortgage Bonds, which are owned by investors in every State and in a number of foreign countries. All you need do is to mail the attached coupon. We will send you an interesting circular called "Why the South Offers Investment Opportunities," and a full description of a Miller First Mortgage Bond issue paying 7%. Mail the coupon today.

Examine this book at our expense

—only then will you appreciate how wonderful it really is

HERE is a single volume containing all of Shakespeare's work. It is made by the master craftsmen of the Oxford University Press in England and follows the exact text, without abridgment, of one of the three authentic copies of the First Folio, in the Bodleian Library at Oxford. Yet this amazing volume, containing 1352 clearly printed pages, is actually only one inch in thickness.

Oxford India Paper

This truly wonderful achievement was made possible by the use of genuine Oxford India paper. The same number of pages of ordinary book paper would make a volume FIVE inches thick! Yet Oxford paper is so strong that a strip of it three inches wide supports a weight of twenty-five pounds. It is so opaque that the printing does not "show through."

But even this is not all. The men who made this book determined that it was to be the supreme achievement of centuries of bookmaking at the Oxford University Press. The type was selected from 550 styles. The very ink was made in Oxford! And each individual book was bound by hand, in flexible gold-stamped Pluviusin, which is better and more durable than ordinary leather.

You must see it

It is impossible to describe or picture this beautiful volume and do it justice. You must see it. You must see and feel the richness of the cover. You must note the clear printing in bold-face type. You must examine the wonderful Oxford India paper. You must read again some of the immortal master's work.

Then—and only then—will you appreciate how remarkable this book is. It is an actual fact that every person who sees this book in our office purchases a copy on the spot. We believe you, too, will be glad to have a copy. We believe you will not want to part with it at any price.

That is why we want to place this book in your hands—for free examination. You pay nothing in advance. There is no C. O. D. Simply send the coupon and we will forward the book, postage prepaid, by return mail.

Only a few hundred copies

For months we have been awaiting this edition, and now the first few hundred copies have arrived from abroad. If you wish, we will gladly send you one for examination. Simply fill in the coupon below and mail it to us today. The book will be sent to you at our expense for one week's free examination. No advance payment. If you agree that the book is all that we say, then send your check or money order to cover the low price. If you do not agree, return the volume to us, charges collect.

The Plymouth Pub. Co.
Dept. 182, 7 West 42d Street,
New York City.

From one of America's most distinguished actors:

"The book is a most complete and convenient one, and a very handsome book, too.

"I shall value it, and shall, I know, find it of constant use as a work of reference."

E. H. Sothern
